PAYING LAST TRIBUTES TO VICTIMS OF PEABODY SCHOOL FIRE

Today was a day of mourning in Peabody, when seventeen victims of St. John's Parochial School fire were buried from St. John's Church. At the left a white casket is shown being borne into the edifice. At the right, Sisters of the school and classmates of victims are seen on way to church services.

of the poor mothers and fathers are bleeding today, and our hearts are bleeding with them. Their sorrow is our sorrow, too.

Life is a great mystery and faith alone can explain it. Every now and then, through the faith of some noble, self-sacrificing, noble, terrible suffering and faith and death.

PRAYER FOR SISTERS.

No one can explain why, no one can understand why, except that wonderful Christian faith which explains everything, life and death, suffering and sorrow. Certainly in this dreadful catastrophe, no one was to blame. Ever careful investigation, official and personal, no one was found blame-worthy.

On the contrary, we were all thrilled by the description of the wonderful faith of heroism on the part of the good sisters and the little children. It is all most pathetic and heart-breaking.

The good Sisters have shown the discipline which comes from a holy life and all that could be done.

This is but another proof, and a striking one, of the wonderful self-control which a Christian life gives. And the dear little ones displayed wonderful acts of charity.

Fathers and mothers, for such you are, look up with the eyes of your faith. You are not pagans, with no hope and no faith. You are Christians, with other views of life. You know that the Almighty God stands waiting for the sorrowful mourning to receive the little ones who will now rest in the arms of God. That is what you know to be the truth.

This life, from your experience, you know to be full of disappointment and death. It is so full of sorrow and grief that no one can hope to escape them. They come sooner or later. When these experiences are all summed up, the story of a long life makes a long chapter.

"WOULD NOT RETURN."

These little ones have gone through it all and are now where, for all that this world could pay them, they would not come back again.

This is your Christian faith, this is the proof you know. This is the faith that in this terrible moment of agony, upon whom in your minds and hearts and bones. This is the proof by which we live and die.

without which we could not live another day.

Our hearts go out in deepest grief and sympathy to the poor sorrowful fathers and mothers. They can hear truly say with a young man of Christ on the cross: "Now, dear Jesus, we understand what suffering is. Now we know Mother of God, we understand what your grief and sorrow must have been as you stood at the foot of the cross."

And we must realize that now, more than ever, we stand close to our Lord, Jesus Christ, who suffered and died for us.

These dear little ones are gone out of the world of sorrow and disappointment to eternal happiness into the loving arms of our Father—God—who loves them far more than any of us could love them. He can give them happiness that none, even the most powerful, can offer.

WHERE ALL PREPARED.

This truth must prevail today in our hearts, in our minds, and in our souls, and there is this thought for all. These little ones were not prepared. It is all over and ready for the sudden, dreadful call. When it was all over I feel and I know that Almighty God accepted these little ones and gave them to his Father.

Oh, dear fathers and mothers, oh, dear people of Peabody, and all the good sisters and priests, I come as your father to console and to sympathize with you, and to give you with you weep.

But now dry your eyes; the light is here. God is kindly. They are nearer than you think. They have taken them. God gave them to you. They are now with Him for all eternity in the bliss of Heaven.

May the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ, through the heaven and sacrifice of that dreadful catastrophe, bring us all nearer and closer, that our faith may become stronger, more fervent and active, and that our hopes of Heaven rest with us more strongly. And may the blessing of Heaven rest on you all.

WALTHAM MUST MAKE FAST IN TODAY

SOMERVILLE, N. H., Oct. 20.—Waltham, N. H., today played its first game of the season, a hard-fought battle with Somerville. The game was a hard battle, with an even chance of winning.

Several changes have been made in the Somerville line-up, largely on account of the injury to High Guard Bradley, who broke a rib in the Newton game. He is out in his toes and could play if needed, but will be reserved for a possible emergency. His place is filled by Johnson, who is moved in from end and fits into his new position in some style.

Johnson, a former halfback, has been shifted to end and will prove a live wire in running down and punting. St. Angelo has been given the place at right half, where he plays the most spectacular game of any man on the team. He is fast on his start, a quick mover and a persistent dodger when carrying the ball, and has won the position by sheer merit, as shown in the past two games.

Of the massive three-down line, the line to pieces, as he did in the Newton game. St. Angelo will probably tear off more than one long run. The entire line is solid and will give Waltham a task to beat it down.

In the Somerville offense, the play is good as its defense, the spectators are sure to see an exciting game.

SALEM, Oct. 20.—Boston English High and Salem High clashed on Hertram Field here today before one of the largest crowds of the season. Why Does Mr. McCall Continue Silent on the Taxation Question?

GOVERNOR WALSH is still asking Mr. McCall where he stands on the question of tax-dodging in Massachusetts, and Mr. McCall is still answering by criticizing four or five appointments out of five hundred which the Governor has made during the last two years. Is it any wonder that about one-fifth the number of people attend the McCall Republican rallies that attend the Walsh rallies? Is it any wonder that there is a general sentiment that the Republican campaign has been a failure? A campaign which carefully avoids real issues will never attract the attention of the people in Massachusetts.

But if Mr. McCall will not answer the Governor's question, the people of Massachusetts must realize the danger of putting him in a place of power during a year when by the passage of the pending Constitutional Amendment, if the people adopt it, the power to revise our tax laws is given to the Governor and the Legislature.

The existence in this State of a tax-dodging organization which is responsible for the amendment now pending before the people is a menacing fact which the AMERICAN has several times called to Mr. McCall's attention. This amendment will be exceedingly dangerous to the people of Massachusetts if the plan of this tax-dodging organization is carried out by a subservient, controlled Legislature such as the Legislature last year which passed this amendment and at the same time refused the safeguarding legislation demanded as its indispensable accompaniment.

Under the tax amendment which will be submitted to the people at the election the Legislature will have the power to discriminate between property which cannot be concealed and property which can be concealed. The Legislature will have the power to establish one rate of taxation for real estate, for your homes, your horses and farms and the physical tangible property with which you do business, and which you cannot conceal, and another rate for the stocks and bonds and other INTANGIBLE property which you CAN conceal.

It is known that this tax-dodging organization intends to secure a law which will tax this concealable property at three dollars on a thousand, while real estate and nonconcealable property is taxed six or seven times that rate. Now, if in addition to the discrimination in favor of stocks and bonds and other concealable property, the owners of this concealable kind of property are also allowed to continue the concealment of it so that they will not only pay a LESS rate, but will not be obliged to pay even this less rate upon ALL their property, you can readily understand what a monstrous injustice and menace the proposed Constitutional Amendment may become, unless we have a resolute Governor who is not obsessed, honestly or dishonestly, it makes no difference, with the idea that this government exists for the purpose of giving "to those who have and taking away from those who have not even that which they have."

Mr. McCall's whole public record indicates that he is of this type of mind. Unless he makes a public declaration of what his attitude will be on this vital question, the public is bound to assume that it will be in keeping with his past public record. That is to say, that he will do whatever the special interests in taxation want him to do, just as he has voted for the infamous Schedule K of the Payne-Aldrich Bill, not because his heart approved of it, but because he is the type of man who cannot resist the confounding pressure of the special interests or the so-called "invisible government."

Governor Walsh has made his position clear on this question, both by his recommendations to the Legislature, his inaugural address and his speeches during the campaign. Why does Mr. McCall persist in his silence on this question? Why does he carp at four or five appointments out of five hundred or more which Governor Walsh has made and AVOID the discussion of important issues like this TAXATION QUESTION?

A Business Man's Reason for Supporting Walsh

THE AMERICAN calls attention to Mr. Edmund D. Codman's statement that he intended to vote for Governor Walsh this year. Mr. Codman's reason for his position is interesting, because Mr. Codman is a leading citizen and business man, who has had unusual experience by which to judge the particular question on which he decides to cast his vote for Governor Walsh.

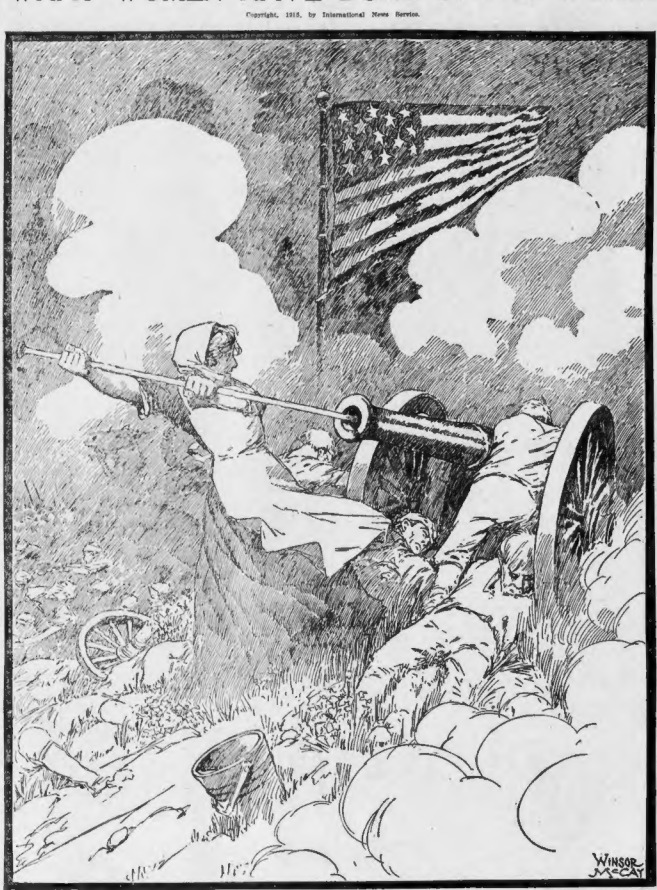

Mr. Codman was president of the Fitchburg Railroad several years ago when it amalgamated with the Boston & Maine. The Fitchburg was the great exporting road of New England. It is the road on which Massachusetts spent twenty-nine million for the purpose of cutting a tunnel through the Hoosac Mountains to open up the grain fields of the West and to give us competition. Mr. Codman lases his decision to vote for Governor Walsh upon the railroad question.

Mr. Codman says: "In order to face the railroad problem in the right direction, it must be faced with independence and fearlessness. This Mr. McCall and his associates have NOT shown by their records. I believe that events have proved that management of railroads faithful to stockholders has become impossible in private hands. All the more so then is the public authority treated by private management. It is inevitably true that corruption political and private slips too easily into the large modern railroads. The influence of the public welfare too great to extract to any private persons."

"I have watched Governor Walsh and his party during the last two years and I feel that he is as much more honest and independent on the railroad question than it is far better to elect him than to elect his opponent."

What the Governor of Kansas Says of Woman Suffrage

"It Has Impelled All Political Parties (in Kansas) to Include in Their Platforms Humanitarian Projects and Moral Issues Which Previously They Had Ignored."

By Governor Arthur Capper of Kansas

MANY persons interested in the success of the equal suffrage campaign now being conducted in New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts have requested me to write to your paper as to the results of woman suffrage in Kansas. I am glad to say that it has been a success in this State, and if the question were again submitted to our people, it would carry almost unanimously. All political parties here believe in it.

The adoption of woman suffrage in Kansas has made it easier to elect men of good moral character to office and harder to elect a man of shady reputation on the people's election day in rural Kansas, with the women voting, is more like a big neighborhood picnic than a political fight.

The extension of equal suffrage to the women of Kansas has had immediate effect for good. It has impelled all political parties to include in their programs and platforms humanitarian projects and moral issues which previously they had ignored.

It has made imperative a more careful selection of nominees. The immediate passage of wise, humane and beneficial laws for the safeguarding of women and children and the betterment of conditions of living, which followed the adoption of equal suffrage laws in Kansas, affords convincing proof that the enfranchisement of American women is a most important step in the advancement of State and national progress. Kansas is proud of her new citizens and appreciates the great part they are taking in every movement which has for its purpose the betterment of the State.

The extension of suffrage to Kansas women has not caused them to neglect their homes in the slightest degree. What time they devote to politics is not taken from their household work, but from plain tasks and similar functions. Their more time, formerly devoted to social functions, is partly spent now in the study and discussion of economic and political questions. No woman is neglecting her home when she is trying to improve the conditions under which she and her children live.

It is claimed by anti-suffragists that the influence of women's votes has been deleterious to the social fabric of the State. The direct contrary is true in Kansas. Women now discuss vital governmental issues, along with the men, and with a keen appreciation of their new responsibilities of citizenship. The participation of women in public affairs is having a wholesome effect in cleaning the State of spoliation and is making for higher ideals in both public and private life. The attitude of the women in political affairs has challenged the admiration of the men, instead of their resentment. The women have not attempted to foist themselves into office, but in a modest way have insisted on clean candidates who stand for the best in social, educational and political progress.

I cordially and earnestly invite the best and keenest business men to investigate conditions in Kansas, with particular reference to the results achieved through equal suffrage and prohibition. All Kansas will welcome them, and give them every assistance to ascertain the actual facts, for our people wish the world to know of the blessings and the benefits of prohibition and equal suffrage as they have found them.

The salient has never been found on the right side of any question. The most hostile and bitter protests against woman suffrage always have come from the vice and intemperance—the evil, corrupt and rough—such element in politics. This intemperate crowd has always fought "the sanctity and purity of the home" by voting selfishly and invensively against woman suffrage and every other question of real value in actually bettering the condition of our homes.

Young Lovers May Read the Last Paragraph First

The Reason for Not PLACING It First Is That the Sunday AMERICAN Has Been HONORED by a Contribution from the Pen of the Governor of the Commonwealth.

The most distinguished contributor to the Sunday AMERICAN for tomorrow is the Governor of the Commonwealth.

Governor Walsh has prepared, for the serious consideration of the readers of the Sunday AMERICAN, an elaborate review of his two years in office as the chief executive of Massachusetts. He not only points to the actual achievements of these two years but he reminds his fellow citizens of many of the things he has tried to do but has failed to accomplish. In each of these latter instances he places the blame exactly where it belongs, upon a hostile Legislature.

When you have read, in the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow, the account of his stewardship by one of the most popular of American Governors, you will have a fuller understanding of what His Excellency means when, adopting the phrase used by United States Senator Root at the New York Constitutional Convention, he speaks of that "invisible government" which pulls the strings down town and makes the Legislature dance.

The contribution of the Governor to the Sunday AMERICAN is NOT a "chaty" affair. There is little in it of what the reporters describe as "human interest." It lacks even what the dramatists, and some others, call "the punch." It is a serious essay, on one of the most serious of all topics, popular government.

It is "in the air," today, that Governor Walsh has won his campaign for that third term which Massachusetts has always gladly given to the GOOD Governor. Which does not detract from the news value of an important paper by the Governor on the Sunday preceding "Election Tuesday."

Eighty cities and towns, in Massachusetts, will oppose the petition of the Bay State Railway Company for authority to raise the unit of fare upon its lines to an average of six cents. ANOTHER Sunday AMERICAN story of unusual importance will give the latest news in this "Bay State" situation.

Hearings on the petition of the "Bay State" will begin, it is announced, one week from Monday morning next at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon.

Practically every corner of Massachusetts is keenly interested in the attempt to make the six-cent fare universal on the trolley lines of Massachusetts. Remonstrances have already been filed with the Public Service Commission on behalf of residents of Arlington, Beverly, Billerica, Burlington, Chelsea, Everett, Gloucester, Groveland, Lawrence, Lowell, Lynn, Lynnfield, Malden, Marblehead, Medford, Needham Heights, Peabody, Reading, Revere, Rockport, Rowley, Salem, Stoneham, Swampscott, Wakefield, West Newbury, Woburn, Dedham, Fall River, New Bedford, Quincy, Randolph, Rockland, Taunton, Weymouth, and several other communities.

How much TIME will be consumed by the hearings is a matter for conjecture. The burden of proof being upon the street Railway Company, the officials and attorneys of the corporation will have the first word. Many days will be occupied by witnesses for the petitioner. Then a recess will be declared, to give the remonstrants time to prepare their case. It will be held in the New Year before the Public Service Board is ready with its decision.

No movement in many years has threatened to affect so many people as this action of the "Bay State" in the direction of a six-cent fare. We are quite sure, therefore, that the Sunday AMERICAN review of the situation will appeal to thousands of our readers throughout Eastern Massachusetts.

Young Mr. Arthur Wilson, the fiction writer, discovered a year or more ago at Harvard through the medium of a (nearby) "expressed" short story, and who has lately written for the Sunday AMERICAN on such interesting topics as the social side of Summer life at Manchester, and other places on the North Shore, has now turned his attention to MACKEREL.

Having himself been "discovered," Mr. Wilson has turned discoverer. He has discovered a gold mine at Gloucester. Not in fifty years or more, Mr. Wilson says, have the fishermen of Gloucester been bringing in such rich prizes from the sea. Who is getting the money, how they feel about it, and how all Gloucester has perked up like a mining community after a big "strike," is told in the Sunday AMERICAN by one of the most interesting young writers of the time.

Mr. Julian Hawthorne's offering is an interview with Mr. Nelson B. Clark of Beverly, the Progressive Party candidate for Governor. Mr. Clark is a Progressive who believes in holding fast to the things which are good. He is one of the large number of Progressives who refused to sell the political birthright of their party for a mess of pottage in a Republican platform. In the Sunday AMERICAN, and through the medium of Mr. Hawthorne's sympathetic pen, Mr. Clark makes plain to the people of the State his reasons for declining to follow Mr. Charles Sumner Bird back into the camp of the G. O. P.

At the special request of Mr. Richard W. Sears, the well-known artist-photographer, the Sunday AMERICAN will print some unusual photographs of Mr. Sears' associates in the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company.

We would particularly call these Sears photographs of the Ancients to the editors of certain more or less important newspapers in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other benighted localities. In certain quarters there is manifested, from time to time, a disposition to scoff at our Ancients, to call them "tin soldiers," "feather-bed soldiers" and the like. These ACTUAL PHOTOGRAPHS, from the cameras of one of New England's most widely celebrated artists, show the Ancients at the target pits and in other scenes and postures revealing their keen interest in "preparation."

Of Romance, we offer the true and thrilling story of a REAL, old-fashioned elopement, with photographs of the happy young people. It took place at midnight, in the moonlight, and the story is not lacking in the late father or any other essential. Read and be convinced that laugh lore still laughs at Jack-in-the-box and always finds a way.
